THE BEST OF
DEL AMITRI

The Millennium Collection

"We've always put songs before gestures," Del Amitri leader Justin Currie had said of his band's musical philosophy. Indeed, the durable Scottish combo, based around the longstanding nucleus of singer/songwriter/bassist Currie and guitarist Iain Harvie, has long avoided faddish trend-hopping and other transient ephemera. Instead, they favored more substantial and enduring values, merging lyrical insight and melodic uplift to create effortlessly accessible music of sonic subtlety and emotional depth.

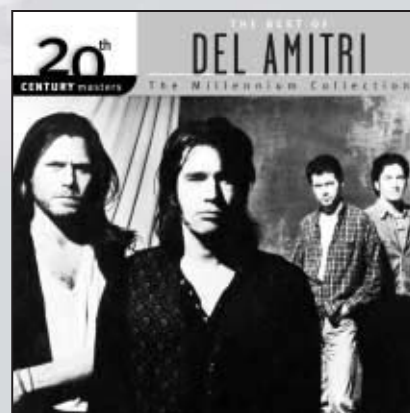

Del Amitri began life in Glasgow in the early 1980s, playing nervously energetic jangle-pop that echoed the youthful spirit of such '80s Scots combos as Orange Juice and Aztec Camera. But they evolved into an energetic rock band merged with singer-songwriter sensibilities and became an international legend. Included here are their many key tracks, such as the hits "Roll To Me," "Kiss This Thing Goodbye" and "Always The Last To Know."
